Re: HTS Classification Disclaimer
From: Amber Freight Shipping Lines

Per US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP) regulation, the importer is responsible for providing all information necessary to properly classify imported merchandise and is responsible for ensuring the correct classification and duty rate are given to US CBP.

Classification(s) are given to you by Amber Freight based upon the information you provided us for identification of the merchandise. The HTS number(s) and duty rate(s) provided are to the best of our ability and should be considered strictly as an opinion without any implied financial liability to the product's actual duty rate and tariff classification at the time of importation.

This information is subject to change by US CBP at any time and may result in an increase of duties and/or fees applicable to your commodity, or special licensing or documentation requirements, at a later date.

Please contact Amber Freight's office for current information.
